

Preface

The growth in economy of a nation is determined by using Gross domestic product. GDP is the backbone of country. The investment in GDP is a very crucial part GDP rates tends to show that it depends in gross products and every possible aspect of each year but the economy is not been affected causing the areas where the GDP should be measured on the contrary it is omitted.

Certainly, the areas which are omitted or level of investment is very limited in certain factors can get increased which will affect and contribute in largely in calculating the GDP. GDP also can be increased by the areas which are not concerned. By increasing the output of the sectors which are not taken into consideration can significantly increase the GDP of India.

GDP is deeply affected by the cumulating GSDP of all states of India. The main idea behind making this project is to increase the GDP of India.
